

SHE MAY NOT LIVE

to see her child grow up . . .

She is one of thousands of women running out of breath, and running out of time.

A deadly disease known as LAM, or Lymphangiomyomatosis, is destroying her lungs. Soon, she won't be able to breathe on her own.

LAM attacks women in the prime of their lives, but many don't know they have it. The symptoms are so common—shortness of breath, chest pain, chronic cough—that women are often misdiagnosed with asthma or chronic bronchitis. In more extreme cases, some women experience lung collapses yet still go undiagnosed.

Could you or someone you know have LAM?

The LAM Foundation is leading the fight against this tragic disease, advancing research for potential treatments and a cure.

The Foundation offers support and resources for women with LAM.

Learn more about LAM and how you can help.
Visit www.thelamfoundation.org

